ALAMO QUARRY MARKET PHASED ROOF REPLACEMENT

Project Overview

In 2016, a severe hailstorm damaged nearly every building at Alamo Quarry Market. Faced with significant financial constraints, ownership could not replace all roofs at once. They turned to our team to deliver a practical, phased solution that would ensure structural integrity, keep businesses open, and protect patrons and business occupants. After a thorough inspection, our team proposed a long-term strategy that combined phased roof replacement with targeted roof coatings in areas where the damage was less severe. This approach addressed the most urgent needs and provided a cost-effective path forward that aligned with ownership's budget while keeping businesses open.

Since the initial response, PAX's work at Alamo Quarry Market has developed into an ongoing partnership. Our team remains actively engaged in maintaining and upgrading the property's roofing systems, ensuring the market remains safe, resilient, and operational for years to come.
